fund struck the total of the amount that had been collected in the house-to-house canvass which began Thursday morning, when contribution blanks were distributed. With twelve downtown squares and eight districts yet to be heard from the amount received and now in the hands of Chairman Edson is $28,003.06. This total also includes

Riley Deeble, a complete list of the contributions to the California relief fund that resulted from the house-to-house collection of Friday, and the amounts sent to the canvassing committee through the mails, was completed about 10 o'clock last night at the rooms of the committee in the Washington Loan and Trust building. To accomplish this vast work seven typewriters and several adding machines, besides the regular clerical force, worked incessantly, and at its conclusion the subcommittee chairmen "One pale, sad-faced woman opened the door in response to my knock, and, handing me the envelope I had left with her the day before, said, with a ghost of a smile: This is only a widow's mite, a mean little pronounced it a magnificent piece of finan-

Another member of the committee remarked that the Sunday mails would undoubtedly be heavy and bring in many be-lated contributions.

The collectors report that many persons

Some said they had given to the fund being collected by their church or society, and others that they had sent sums to the newspapers or had purchased tickets for entertainments that were given for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers. As a rule those who collected the relief money from the homes and business places of the District report that the amounts from small to large were given cheerfully and in the true spirit of

Some of the experiences of one of the ladies who canvassed a district for the California relief fund has been given to The Sunday Star, and it said to be merely a repetition of the experiences of others who engaged in the house-to-house canvass in the cause of stricken humanity.

She was full of energy and enthusiasm as she started out bright and early Thursday morning to distribute 150 subscription When she returned home, about noon, very warm and more tired than she had thought possible, the energy was somewhat less, but the enthusiasm had not waned.

"Every one was so cordial and so interested," she said, "and hearty expressions of sympathy for the poor hungry, homeless Californians were universal. When I went over the same route Friday, collecting the sealed envelopes containing the contribu-tions, the glimpses of human nature which were vouchsafed me were most interesting were vouchsafed me were most interesting. For instance, one woman was being interviewed by a collector, who reminded her that she had not made the usual payment for this month. In the same breath with which she put him off until 'next pay day' she told me how sorry she was not to make her contribution larger, and put a dollar bill into the envelope. The collector did not even protest at seeing the dollar which should have gone into his wallet carried away by a triumphant young woman with
